Course Description:
This course is designed to acquaint the student with the various theories concerning criminal etiology. Historical theories as well as current research will be explored. The student will also examine different types of crimes in relation to causation.
Part of the goal for this course is to present material within a context which is consistent with MNU’s evangelical Christian values tradition.

Text: Criminology, Siegel, 9th edition.
Current research and other relative materials will also be included in the course content.

Evaluation Procedures:
A total of four examinations will be given covering class lectures, class discussions, audio visual presentations, and any additional assignments. Each test carries the same weight, including the final.
The final IS comprehensive/take home. Examinations will consist of multiple choice and true/false questions.

Discussion: During power point lectures a series of questions will be posed for quick discussion (Pop the Question). Students are expected to actively participate in discussion activities.

Summary/reaction papers will be required after audio visual presentations and any special speakers. Summary/reaction papers combined will equate to one test score. Papers will be at least one page, typed, double spaced, title/date, and due by the next class meeting.

Points may be deducted for spelling and other grammatical errors.
These points will be added back when the student makes the corrections. This applies to any written assignment.

All written assignments will be submitted via email to dpartric@mnu.edu. Assignments will be in Word format and sent using the student’s mnu.edu email address.

For a make-up test, the student must provide a proper reason and make arrangements to take the test no later than 2 days following the date scheduled for that particular test. If the student does not notify the professor prior to the test, the instructor has the option of downgrading the test score. Extra credit is not an option.

Academic Honesty: Refer to the student handbook.

Citizenship: In order to enhance the classroom learning environment, students are expected to display appropriate levels of respect and courtesy. Unacceptable behavior will result in a deduction of overall percentage points.

Special Needs: Students needing special accommodations for this class should notify the professor during the first 2 weeks of the course.

Grade Weight: Four tests, Reactions papers, Discussion; all 100 points each.

Test Dates:
Friday, Sept. 19th
Wednesday, Oct. 15th
Friday, Nov. 14th
Final-Wednesday, December 10th, 10:00-11:50

Absences: Students will be allowed 3 unexcused absences before the last 2 weeks of the semester. A 4th unexcused absence will result in 4 percentage points being deducted from the overall average. Unexcused absences thereafter will result in at least 2 percentage points deducted.

During the last 2 weeks of the semester, the penalty doubles for any unexcused absence.
