

Joshua Richards (Ph.D., St Andrews) is Associate Professor of English at MidAmerica Nazarene University. His first monograph T. S. Eliot's Ascetic Ideal was published by Brill in 2020. His research specialty is religious and mythological intertextuality between 1880–1945 and he also serves as the bibliographer for the International T. S. Eliot Society and the Eliot editor for Oxford University Press's Year's Work in English Studies. In addition to T. S. Eliot, he has written on authors such as C. S. Lewis, J. R. R. Tolkien, George MacDonald, Sir Walter Scott, J. K. Rowling, and contemporary Japanese manga. He has taught literature for over thirteen years across three continents but currently lives in Olathe with his wife and son.